

Private Eden Academy - website idea

Description:

An open world pixel sprite game for people to chat, have fun and connect with others online. It is an open browser game that allows the user to create human to humanoid avatars to interact with the world.

Purpose statement:

Private Eden is a social game with players working together to slowly uncover the hidden mysteries behind the school.

Functions of the site:

1. Being able to make an account via google, discord, etc

Measure of success: making separate accounts or the option to link accounts if logging in on same device or through settings

2. The ability to create your own avatar

Measure of success: Having the ability to have a wide variety of creation options and multiple slots for as many characters to be able to switch between

3. Chatting, Connecting and friending people you play with

Measure of success: Have a friends list that becomes available as soon as you make a friend that says the time they were last on and allows you to instant message them when they are online.

4. Uncover a story that is hiding behind the prestigious school of the game

Measure of Success: Having a quest log for the individual player that tells you what npc to go to and the ability to communicate with said npc.

5. Creating your own dorm room/house and having a small place to express yourself that you can invite friends or others to visit

Measure of success: Players would be able to access another tab of the site to design and custom their room with various objects

User Persona:

Primary:

- Name: Arty
- Age: 19
- Has trouble communicating with people face to face
- Enjoys gaming and loves mysteries
- Finds it easier to text and call online
- Likes making little characters and stories for fun

Secondary:

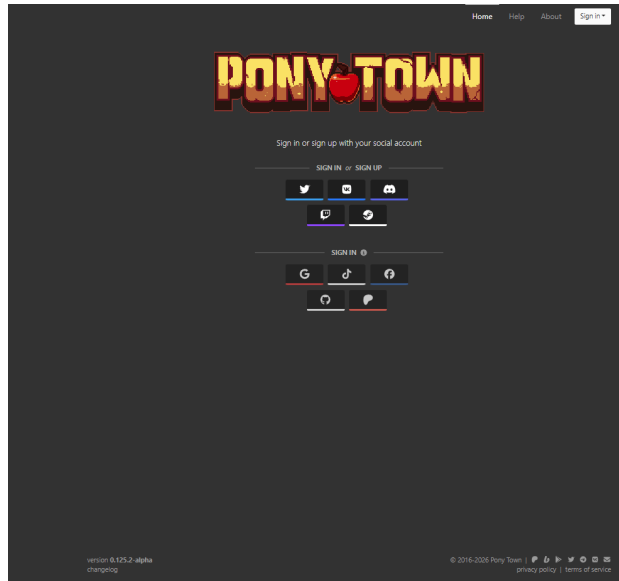

- Name: Daniel
- Age: 23
- Extroverted however has a low social battery
- Wants to chat more with friends however their work has them tied to their laptop consistently
- Does some interior design from time to time
- Doesn't mind making more friends whenever he goes.

- Name: Saki
- Age 15
- Bored of games that take up space on their device
- Likes puzzle games and open worlds
- Loves character customizers and interacting with NPCS
- Loner but wants to change that.

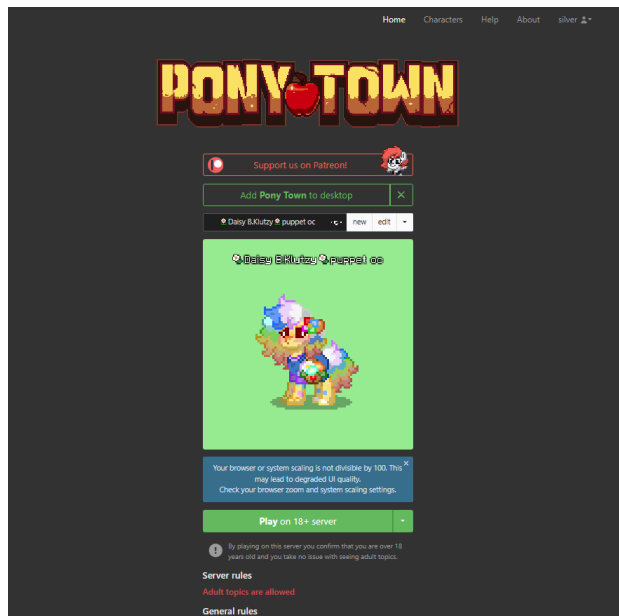

Competitor:

Ponytown

- A web browser game made in 2016 with the boom of mlp.

Not logged in logged in

The game's website Palette

#eeeeee - font color

font-family: var(--bs-font-sans-serif)